lose, the candidates in this ASBYU elections share a common relief that the whole is over.

Victory for most election participants is catching up on lost sleep and missed during the rigorous campaign marked by endless rallies, handshakes, and passing out fliers.

Exhausted, mixed with fatigue, showed on the faces of most of the candidates Saturday night at the dance to announce election winners. While waiting for the results to be told, some called "good luck" to their friends, while others waited in all day Friday and Saturday night," said Kim Cox, next year's service president. "Several people said it was very close." Cox said he had a "gut feeling" after the polls Friday that they had made it, and that it would be very close. The Litster-Cox team won over Miller-Gessel by 521 votes.

Gessel said he and his running mate, Brent Miller, would "have to be back again," but that both would be active in student government. "It was a good rapport with Dave Litster and Kim (Cox)," he said.

Sharm Smoot, who edged out Spencer Allen for Academics Office, was in the closest race of the night. "I came to the dance late and saw who had won. 'Someone congratulated me when I walked out,' I said. 'I asked them if that was you.'"

Wade Rasmussen attributed his experience with the Athletics Office for his victory. "We weren't out for the show and attention," he said. "We wanted to show the realistic issues."

Other than my grades in school, I think it was really worth it," said Marva Nebeker, who was defeated by Miss Harris in the race for Women's Office vice president. Miss Nebeker said she was not a loser, because of the people she was able to meet and work with. "Just winning their respect and support made me a winner," she said. If she had had another day or two, Miss Nebeker said she thought she would have won. She trailed Miss Harris by 103 votes.

Most of the losers left shortly after the election results were announced. The winners stayed, thanking campaign workers and accepting congratulations from friends. Celebrations were planned, but not by all.

President Romney was born in Colonia Juarez, Mexico, and went to school there until 1912.

George S. Romney, President Romney's father, was at one time president of Ricks College.

President Romney graduated from Ricks in 1920 and received a bachelor's degree at the University of Utah in 1926. He received his LL.B in 1932, and later a law degree.

He was admitted to the bar and practiced law in Salt Lake City for 11 years. He served as assistant county attorney, assistant district attorney and assistant city attorney. He also served in the state legislature from 1935 to 1936.

"I'm going home to get some sleep," Litster said, as he left the dance early. "I gotta catch up."

McKean was also devoid of celebration plans. "I've got $3," he said. "What would you do?"

Officials 'pleased'

'Gimmicks' animate campaign

By TIM WOODLAND
Universe Staff Writer

ASBYU elections are over for another year, but not without leaving their effects upon students, candidates and administration.

Perry Bratt, ASBYU president, said he was "very pleased" with the way elections were run. "The candidates all did a really good job, and showed to the studentbody how an election can be run," he said.

This year saw more gimmicks than past years, Bratt said. "I like gimmicks. Some students say the campaigners should act more their age, but gimmicks are a necessary part of student life."

This year candidates used barrage balloons, hang gliders, owl and gorilla costumes, old model cars and even double-decker buses to give their campaign a uniqueness over other candidates. A presidential team even went so far as to write a song about BYU and their candidacy and had it sung on campus several times throughout their campaigning.

During election time, it was unnecessary to open the main doors of the Wilkinson Center. Candidates and supporters held the doors open for fellow students, as they held posters advertising campaigns.

Wess Larson, winner in the Social Office race, said: "I watched really close the campaigning last year. I realized then that the way to win at BYU is graphically, so I tried to run a good campaign based on graphics."

Some of the other candidates approached their campaigns differently. Paul McKean, Community Services vice president elect, said: "My campaign was pretty low-key, because I didn't have much money." McKean quit his job at the Missionary Training Center in order to campaign.

Paul Brown, elections committee chairman, said he was also very pleased with the elections. "There were not any violations brought before the ASBYU court until last Friday," the final day of elections. Brown said this was quite an improvement over last year's elections. "Through the court system, we've solved some legal issues, and placed an amendment on the ballot."

The effort of the elections committee, from the very beginning, was to assist the candidates in "seeing a need to promote ASBYU," Brown said. "We requested that the candidates promote BYU through ingenuity and integrity, throughout their campaigns. We feel the candidates followed this advice."

The level of participation from the studentbody also improved over past years, Brown said. Voter turnout was high, but also the amount of involvement on the part of student volunteers was good, he said. Almost 300 students were involved in some way with the elections committee.

A 521-vote edge gave victory to David Litster and Kim Cox in the race for the ASBYU presidency, as a final election turnout of over 8,000 voters determined winners of next year's executive council seats.

The winners of Thursday and Friday's final voting were announced Saturday night to a nervous and hopeful "victory dance" crowd in the Richards Building.

Most candidates attributed their winning to personal contact with students in the intensive two-week campaign. Tables set up in the Wilkinson Center were manned daily by candidates and their workers.

"We won because of the support of our campaigners," Litster said. A margin of 6.5 percent separated the Litster-Cox ticket, with 3,688 votes, from opponents Brent Miller and Mark Gessel, who received 3,167.

"We had over 100 workers, and probably 30 that put in very long hours," Cox said.

Brent Phillips and Brad Botteron, write-in candidates for ASBYU president and executive vice president, garnered 1,244 votes despite being disqualified from the race Friday in an ASBYU Commons Court decision for alleged campaign violations. (See related story, page 2.)

Although they declined at the nominations convention to run for a second term, ASBYU President and Executive Vice President Perry and Jon Bratt received three sustaining votes to continue in the presidency.

The election turnout provided other interesting results as four Executive Council offices were decided by margins of 5 percent or less.

The closest race was for the Academics Office, in which Sharm Smoot edged David Christensen by 65 votes, or .8 percent. Smoot received 3,785 votes, Christensen 3,720. Smoot called his candidacy a "people's campaign."

"Overall, I shook very few hands and talked to few people," he said. "I won because I had so many people working for me."

In the contest for Women's Office,

ELECTION RESULTS
President-Vice President		Social
Litster/Cox	3,688	Wes Larson	4,355
Miller/Gessel	3,167	Spencer Allen	2,593
Phillips/Botteron	1,244	Student Community Service
Academics		Paul McKean	3,462
Sharm Smoot	3,785	J. Collette Johnson	3,273
David Christensen	3,720	Women's
Athletics		Jill Harris	3,845
Wade Rasmussen	4,283	Marva Nebeker	3,742
Ron Blood	3,442	Organizations
Culture		Kelvyn Cullimore	4,384
Paul Hernandez	3,837	Susan Hollingsworth	2,958
Gary Laney	3,483	Constitutional Revision
Finance		Yes	3,745
Mark Seethaler	4,068	No	2,420
David Ward	3,018	The proposed amendment needed 4,069 votes to pass.

Jill Harris nipped Marva Nebeker by 103 votes, 3,845 to 3,742. Miss Harris attributed her winning to "popular" points in her platform, especially teaching women how to represent the LDS Church in a non-Mormon community.

Paul McKean won the Student Community Services position over J. Collette Johnson by 189 votes — 3,462 to 3,273, a margin of 2.80 percent. McKean said his emphasis was on talking personally to as many students as possible, especially in the last two days of campaigning.

A surprising finish by Paul Hernandez gave him victory over Gary Laney in the campaign for the Culture Office seat: 3,837 votes to Laney's 3,483. Hernandez, who finished third in the primaries, entered the finals after Tiana Fatutalie withdrew from the race. Laney had led in the primary voting for the office.

In the race for Athletics vice president, Wade Rasmussen defeated Ron Blood by a count of 4,283 to 3,442. "We weren't out for show and attention," Rasmussen said. "We wanted to show the realistic issues."

Mark Seethaler won the Finance Office position over David Pratt Ward, 4,068 votes to 3,018. "I think we won because we had better graphics, good P.R. and a sound platform," Seethaler said.

Winning in the Social Office was Wess Larson, who defeated Spencer Allen 4,355 votes to 2,593. Larson said he studied how campaigning was conducted in last year's elections, and felt confident throughout the campaign.

Kelvyn Cullimore captured more votes than any other candidate, defeating Susan Hollingsworth for the Organizations vice presidency. Cullimore had 4,384 votes to Miss Hollingsworth's 2,958.

"I think the thing that helped me win was my sandwich board campaign," Cullimore said. "We were holding doors open during the voting days, not just stuffing fliers in people's hands."

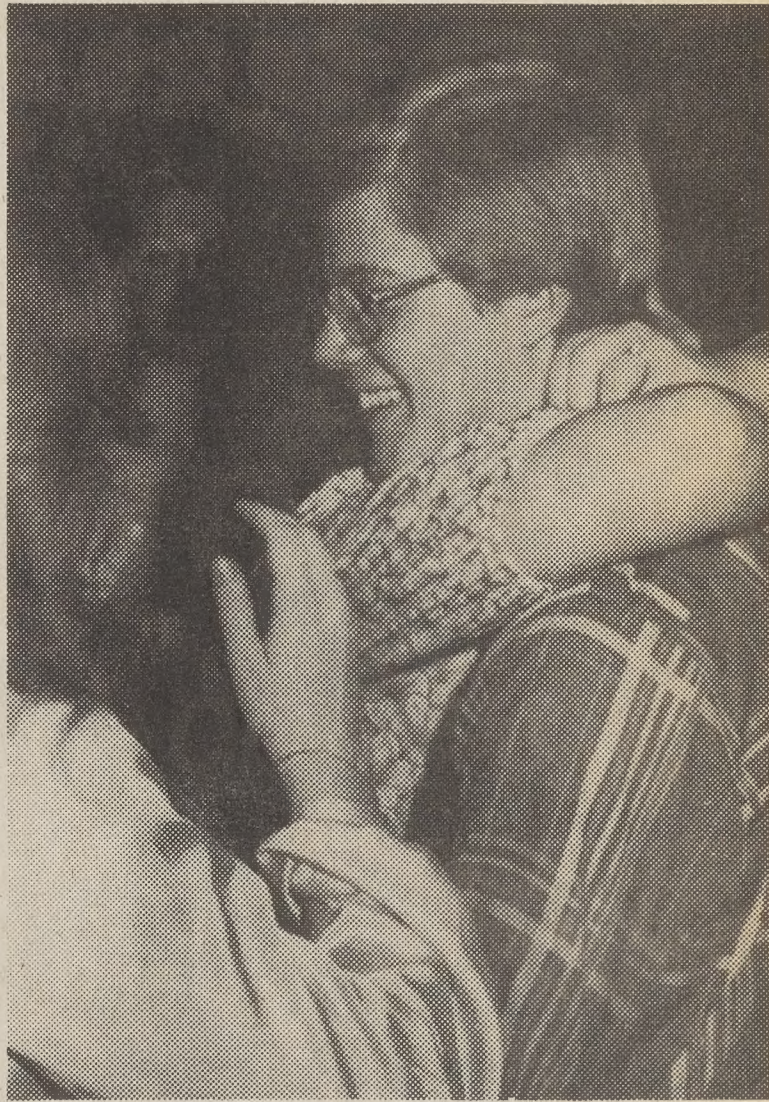

A proposed amendment to the ASBYU constitution, which would have lessened eligibility restrictions for candidates, received 3,745 "yes" votes, but fell short of the 4,069 votes needed for its ratification.

Cox said after the polls had closed Friday he had "a gut feeling we won it," but remained apprehensive up until Saturday's news of victory.

Concerning the narrow margin of defeat in the presidential race, Miller said he was "satisfied" with the voting results. "We ran a good, strong campaign," Miller said. "It was a good experience, but now it's time to be a student again."

Following campaigning which saw every gimmick from fake gorilla's to live cougars, Social Office vice-president-elect Wes Larson receives a congratulatory hug.

The total number of voters in election finals last year was 5,583, or 23 percent of the studentbody. This year, more than 8,000 students cast votes in the finals.

"Faculty allowed candidates to participate more in the classroom," Brown said. "This proved to be a very good opportunity for both the students and the candidates to state their views and answer questions about their platforms."

Apathy is a commonly-used word used around BYU during elections, Brown said. "I don't feel we really have apathy; it is merely the fact that feelings of animosity are construed as apathy. We have a very concerned studentbody."

A systematic random sample of voters was conducted last week during primary voting. Of the 7,233 students who voted, 49 percent were male and 51 percent were female, Brown said.

The freshman class is 27 percent of the enrollment at BYU. However, 48 percent of the students who voted were freshmen. Sophomores made up 26 percent of the voters. The sophomore class accounts for 22.5 percent of the enrollment. Juniors are nearly 20 percent of the BYU studentbody, but only accounted for 16 percent of the voting. Seniors have an enrollment of nearly 21.5 percent of the studentbody and had a total of 8 percent participate in the primary voting.

Ten officers have been elected, Bratt said, and later this month an executive secretary and an Ombudsman will be selected, filling the top positions in ASBYU government.

Brzezinski heads for Mideast

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — U.S. presidential envoy Zbigniew Brzezinski left here for Cairo Sunday after evidently failing to blunt the opposition of Saudi Arabia and Jordan, two key Arab states, to an Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

Brief statements by both Arab governments reaffirmed support for a "comprehensive peace" in the Mideast, signaling they will not back the proposed Israeli-Egyptian pact, which they see as a separate settlement.

China called 'professional liars'

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam called China's leaders "professional liars" Sunday for claiming to have withdrawn invasion forces "while in fact they still maintain their troops in many areas on Vietnamese territory and close to the border ready for other acts of war."

The official Vietnamese newspaper Nhan Dan called China the "direct and dangerous enemy" of all Indochina and warned Thailand against a pro-Chinese stance.

A Vietnam radio broadcast, meanwhile, claimed that China suffered 60,000 dead or wounded in the five-week-long war and lost 100 artillery pieces and 500 vehicles.

The state is seeking the death penalty for Hart, a muscular former Locust Grove High School football star, who is charged with three counts of first-degree murder.

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (AP) — According to legend, the swallows of Capistrano will repeat Monday their annual "miracle," completing a 7,000-mile journey from Argentina by returning to their beloved mission exactly on St. Joseph's Day.

Write-ins to appeal decision

By D. SCOTT SMITH
Universe Staff Writer

The write-in presidential team of Phillips and Botteron today will appeal the court decision which disqualified them from the elections, in order to "clear our names."

"The main reason we want to appeal is to clear our names of the decision last Friday and not to come across as the sour grape candidates," Brent Phillips said.

The penalty of disqualification was handed down Friday evening by the ASBYU Commons Court.

The team, who captured 1,244 write-in votes in the final election, was charged with not turning in their financial reports, illegally parking a semi-truck on campus and exceeding the imposed budget by $6.82. Phillips and Brad Botteron pleaded guilty to the charges.

"I feel we have to appeal," Phillips said. "I do not feel that justice was served." Phillips told the judges "$6.82, a parking permission problem, and a late piece of paper does not justify disqualification.

"To plan for eight months, sacrifice 3,000 man hours, grades and hundreds of dollars of work and then to have it all go on the last night, just doesn't seem fair," he said.

Joe Hepworth, chief investigator in the attorney general's office, said disqualification was the only penalty which could be legally imposed, according to ASBYU bylaws.

Phillips said, "It is sad that they were bound by the bylaws which didn't give them any other recourse. The bylaws were so stated that they couldn't do anything but disqualify us."

"I only wish there would have been more recourses to take," Attorney General Suzanne Van Leishout said. "I agree there was an unjust balance between the charge and the penalty."

Concerning why they exceeded the expenditure limit by $6.82, Botteron said the overspending was the result of the unexpected $15 tow charge for removing the semi-truck from the Harris Fine Arts Center parking lot. Phillips said although they had permission from Security to park the truck there, they did not have permission from the elections committee.

Cougar baseball wins Idaho series

The Cougar batsmen swept four games from the University of Idaho Vandals this weekend in a series that featured a 16-0 shut out.

The shutout was the result of the combined efforts of pitchers Bert Bradley, who pitched five innings and is now 4-0, and Scot Nebeker, who finished up the last two innings of the second game.

But that was not the only game in which the Cougar pitching staff shined. In the fourth game of the series, Axle Hardy went the full seven innings and gave up only three hits for a 7-3 Cougar win.

Chalking up the other two Cougar wins were Bill Pittson, for the third game which ended 6-3, and Tom Morris, for the first game when the Cougars won 5-4.

Cougar bats also excelled in the weekend's competition, especially the bats of Murphy Sua, who hit three home runs to bring his season total to eight.

Two hours after the end of Saturday's last game, the Cougars left for San Diego, where they are currently competing in the Sun Classic Tournament.

Y cagers finish 3rd in finals

Wayland Baptist College shattered BYU's post-season championship dreams Friday, winning handily over the Cougars 91-67 in the opening round of the AIAW at Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif.

The Cougars battled back to earn a third place finish in the sectional tourney, dumping Oregon 74-68 in Saturday's consolation game. Oregon had lost their first round contest to UCLA on Friday.

Y tracksters finish third in Arizona

BYU finished third in Saturday's triangle track meet with the University of Southern California and Arizona State.

Benton Hart lead a BYU sweep of the 5,000 meters, Jari Keihias in the javlin, Larry Lawerance in the steeplechase and Rafeal Echavarria in the intermediate hurdles were also Cougar winners.

Y tennis teams tame Buffalos

The Colorado Buffalos returned home with their tails between their legs this weekend, as the Cougar tennis teams broke the Buffs by scores of 8-1 in both the men's and women's matches.

Neither teams had much trouble with Colorado in the bouts played consecutively on Friday, as all but three of the individual matches were won in two straight sets.

Now both the men's and the women's team records are marred by only one loss. The men's record is 8-1, while the women's is 21-1.

REALISM AND ROMANTICISM IN LITERATURE—MAN: NATURALLY NOBLE OR CORRUPT

Romanticism and realism are based philosophically on two diametrically opposed ways of looking at man: that he is naturally good or that he is not. Therefore realism and romanticism are not merely literary jargon, we should be able to see these terms and the literary movements that incorporated them as reflections of ways of life offering contentment or revolution, anarchy or order, denial or acceptance.

THE GENESIS OF THE HOLOCAUST: WHY HITLER AND CRONIES TRIED TO DESTROY THE EUROPEAN JEWS

This lecture will explain the ideological background and emotional attitudes of Adolf Hitler and other prominent Nazis which provides the basis for their commitment to exterminate the European Jews. The mixture of traditional Anti-Semitism, Social Darwinism, the identification of the Jews with Bolshevism, etc. produced a solution that would eventually explode into the most inhumane violence. Perhaps this lecture can contribute something to our understanding of the Holocaust.

THE DYNAMICS OF CITIES: A FRESH APPROACH TO UNDERSTANDING NEIGHBORHOOD CHANGE

There is widespread confusion concerning the dynamics of cities and the causes of neighborhood decline. The demographic trends over the next decade provide a unique opportunity for city revitalization—although they also bring new challenges. However, many of our past government programs have failed because they did not consider the dynamics of the urban market place. Is it possible to design a fresh set of housing strategies based on an understanding of these market dynamics?

HOW TO SING WITH THE LIGHT OF CHRIST IN ONE CHALLENGING LESSON

Are there esthetic values and the spiritual values? Or vice-versa? Either/or? Neither?/both? Why is it that when you go after either with a determination to capture, they somehow crumble in your hands? How is it that when you "go after" neither, but entertain them both that they flood in upon you unremittingly?

ENERGY THROUGH A DARK GLASS, OR A MURKY LOOK AT THE FUTURE

Perhaps too much has been said of energy problems and crisis, but the temptation to crystal-ball the future is irresistible. What we take for granted every day is little understood and only operationally defined, yet may hold a key place in describing future culture, economy, and ecology. Where are the future energy sources and what will they cost? Are we at a crossroads to the future or just a bump in the road? Is the crystal ball of energy clear or murky?

SUCCESS ORIENTED ENVIRONMENT: ENHANCES NOT INHIBITS

Learning in a success oriented environment frees both the learner and the teacher to contribute to each other's growth. Individuals are viewed in a positive, constructive way. There is less condemning and less negative criticism at the same time there is greater expectations for growth. The success oriented environment enhances learning and creativity.

Owls, cougars, mothers— just part of campaign trail

During the time allotted to candidates running for ASBYU offices, various techniques were used to influence the studentbody to vote for a certain person. Here, a giant owl encourages students to "Give a hoot" for Sharman Smoot.

ASBYU President-elect David Litster, along with his mother, Birdell Litster, express their joy following the announcement of the winner for ASBYU president. The team of Litster and Kim Cox won by a 521 vote margin over Brent Miller and Mark Gessel.

Despite the announcement of their defeats for ASBYU president, Brent Phillips and Brent Miller get caught up in the post-election celebration. Miller and Mark Gessel lost by 521 votes; Phillips and Brad Botteron received 1,244 write-in votes.

Satisfied with its efforts in campaigning the past week, this baby cougar decided to slumber off into another world and escape the celebration around long before the winners were announced.
